“Learning from one another is a constant. It’s great to be in a place where people aren’t afraid to say, ‘I don’t know, but let’s ask someone who may know and try figuring out this problem by moving through different avenues.’ That’s what it’s really all about. That’s the most exciting part.”

Enhance your GLOBAL PERSPECTIVE

Recognizing and respecting values, attitudes, and beliefs across cultures are essential tools in the 21st century, and one of the most effective ways to build cultural competency is by studying abroad.

The Rutherford Center offers study programs in Africa, the Americas, Asia, Australia, the Caribbean, and Europe.

- All students, regardless of major, are eligible to participate
- You can study abroad for a full semester, during January Short Term, or as part of your summer break

57% of our undergraduates enjoy an international experience | 20 destinations around the world

Overcome real-life challenges THROUGH LEADERSHIP TRAINING

- negotiation tactics
- active listening
- executive decision-making
- focused discussion facilitation
- team project design and execution

Students work collaboratively in a supportive and dynamic environment where experimentation with ideas is encouraged.

ABOUT THE RUTHERFOORD CENTER

Made possible by the generosity of Jean Hall Rutherford, Hollins class of 1974, and her husband, Thomas D. Rutherford Jr., the Rutherford Center builds upon the university’s strong foundation of experiential learning. Through its programs, students acquire the experience necessary to thrive in both professional and educational settings after earning their undergraduate degrees. Learn more at hollins.edu/rutherfordcenter.
